Weekly Market Update

Primary market environment: High inflation, driven by energy prices, remains a determining factor on the markets. Thus, the ECB is under immense pressure to act. Despite concerns about an economic slowdown, a large rate hike (75 bps) is likely this month. In China, the Caixin manufacturing index slipped into contraction territory.

Primary market barometer

SSA

After a subdued start to the week, the trend - the search for safe assets - continued in midweek with a veritable fireworks display. The SSA segment offered everything the heart desires - a multitude of issuers and a maturity range of 5-15 years.

Covered Bonds

This week's primary market results are very positive for the covereds. Almost all transactions recorded a high order book dynamic, so that the initial spread specifications could be narrowed significantly.

Senior Unsecured

In the senior unsecured segment, the primary market has recently seen a surprisingly strong revival. Investors have high investment needs, but remain very selective. Next week will see the ECB's interest rate decision. We expect a slowdown in new issues.

SSA

The demand for safe forms of investment continues. Since Wednesday, a large number of new issues have been placed by attractive issuers for which a positive interim balance can be drawn, both for the Order books and for the narrowing of spreads compared to the default. In the 5-year maturity range, the Korean development bank "KDB" and the Japanese municipal financier Japan Finance Organization for Municipalities were active. Investitionsbank Schleswig-Holstein opted for an eight-year maturity. The Danish municipal financier KommuneKredit, as well as the French central oil stock-holding agency (SAGESSE), chose 10-year issues. The regional development bank of the German state of North Rhine-Westphalia as well as the international development organisation International Development Association came to the market with long maturities of 15 years. The former was also structured according to social aspects (with a focus on housing promotion, job creation and education initiatives). In the case of the German promotional banks, federal and state guarantees offer maximum security and keep risk premiums comparatively low. Today, BGK followed with a EUR benchmark (EUR 600 million, 5-year, MS+180), JFM (5-year, MS+21) and Finnvera (EUR 1 billion, 5-year, MS-8).

Covered Bonds

The primary market continues to enjoy great interest. This leads to oversubscribed order books and consequently the initial spreads can be narrowed without exception. This week, 5 bonds, including a

"Since the end of last week, the coordinates have shifted towards possibly stricter tightening measures. Of course, this does not leave the covered bond market unaffected. Once again, the market is eagerly awaiting the setting of price points by primary transactions. After a subdued start to the week, the market shot out of all cylinders yesterday! The initial price concessions are to be expected in view of the feared rise in overall market yields. Santander, for example, offered a dual tranche of 5 and 10 years with initial NIPs of approx. 15 bps after a long absence."

Comment from the Helaba trading floor dual tranche of Banco Santander, were successfully placed with an exceptionally high issue volume of EUR 3.5 billion. HSBC SFH France kicked off with a EUR 500 million benchmark. The order book was 3.8 times oversubscribed and the initial spread was narrowed from MS+30 to MS+25. When assessing the issue spread, it is important to note that the covered bond issuer HSBC France SFH is to be sold to My Money Bank Group (MMG). The higher spread level can be explained by the anticipation of the change in ownership and the comparatively poorer MMG rating. Hypo NOE (EUR 500 million, WNG, 8 years, MS+20) was active today. Compared to the other issues this week, the oversubscription rate was relatively low. Unsurprisingly, the ECB also remains active: Within the framework of the APP, it increased its covered bond portfolio (CBPP3) by EUR 331 million in the last reporting week. We assume that these purchases are an anticipation of the high September maturities of EUR 6.8 bn and that the latter will not be fully replaced.

Outlook: Issuance activity will undoubtedly continue in the coming days, although this is likely to be limited to the first few days of the week given the ECB meeting on Thursday.

Senior Unsecured

In the senior unsecured segment, too, the primary market has recently picked up strongly after the summer break. Last week, market conditions here seemed almost as favorable as in the other two bond classes we monitor: In principle, investors are keen to buy, albeit at still elevated spread levels.

On Wednesday and Thursday of this week in particular, a respectable number of deals in EUR benchmark format were successfully accommodated, including, for example, Raiffeisen Bank International, where the Russian activities are currently causing plenty of uncertainty about the strategic targets of the institution.

For the most part, spreads on the transactions were narrowed encouragingly during the book building process. However, the market environment remains volatile: iBoxx Financials spreads were clearly affected by expectations of interest rate hikes and gas supply stops and widened noticeably compared to the previous week. Secondary market spreads for the new bonds mentioned above were also unable to escape this trend.

Outlook: The institutions' issuance plans for this year are still quite extensive, driven not least by high maturities and regulatory requirements. Any favorable market conditions will therefore continue to be actively used for senior unsecured issues. Investors are particularly looking for good qualities.

The market environment remains challenging for the time being and transaction risks high in view of geopolitical tension and event-driven news. For example, another ECB meeting is scheduled for next week. The pace of new issues is therefore likely to tend to slow in the coming days.

“Yields and significantly wider iTraxx indices are pushing to ever higher levels. Turnover is picking up and we are seeing increased activity in real money accounts as sellers. At the same time, the latter are active in the secondary market following new issues. Fast Money is taking primary market gains. ETF funds are currently sellers, encountering weak supply. Trading desks have been preparing for the current flood of new issuance over the summer and can therefore act, even though there is relatively low risk appetite.”

Short news

9/1 The European Covered Bond Council has published the new edition of the Covered Bond Fact Book.

8/30 Chinese banks: China's industry leader Industrial and Commercial Bank of China (ICBC) joined the trend of mid-single-digit profit growth among China's major state-controlled banks with a 4.9% rise in after-tax profits to 171.5 billion yuan (just over 24.5 billion euros) in the first half of the fiscal year. Nevertheless, increased credit default risks related to weak property market soundness and deteriorating creditworthiness among Chinese real estate developers are creeping in. ICBC had to increase loan loss provisions in the real estate sector by 15%, with the NPL ratio climbing from 4.79% to 5.4%. (Börsen-Zeitung)

8/30 Italian banks. Italy's central bank Banca d'Italia, the government and the private banks' deposit guarantee fund FITD are apparently working to create a new aid fund to support small banks in difficulty. This was reported by the business newspaper "Il Sole 24 Ore" with reference to an alleged meeting of the parties involved in early August in Rome. (Börsen-Zeitung)

8/30 Foreign banks in Germany: Citigroup launches new corporate banking business in Germany and targets internationally active SMEs.

8/29 ECB monetary policy: Speculation on 75 bps interest rate step gains momentum – the probability increased from 24 % to 67 %. (Handelsblatt)

8/29 Customer loans: The city of Vienna apparently needs an emergency loan worth billions because of a utility company. (NZZ)

8/29 Customer loans: Uniper fully utilizes its KfW credit line and intends to raise a further 4 bn EUR.

8/28 New lending: Lending to companies in the Euro zone rised by 7.7% in July, the strongest increase since 2009. (ECB)

8/25 Russia exposures: Citigroup intends to wind down its consumer and local commercial banking businesses in Russia.

Leisure tip for the weekend: Xanten in North Rhine-Westphalia

Xanten is a town in North Rhine-Westphalia with about 22,000 inhabitants, which is known for its Roman history and the numerous sights from this time. Therefore, the medium-sized district city of the district of Wesel is not only known domestically, but also popular with international tourists. Among the most famous sights of the city are undoubtedly the Archaeological Park, the Roman Museum, the Cathedral of St. Victor and the Castra Vetera (reliefs of a Roman base camp). In addition to the city itself, Xanten's surroundings are also attractive for exploration and relaxation excursions. For example, there are several nature reserves and lakes near the Rhine and in the direction of Wesel.
